

The Glenalmond Golf School

Introduction

The Glenalmond Golf School is nestled in the rolling Perthshire hills and set within over 300 acres of picturesque school grounds. It is run by a Level III PGA Professional and offers an environment of excellence for the aspiring golfer to discover their true potential.

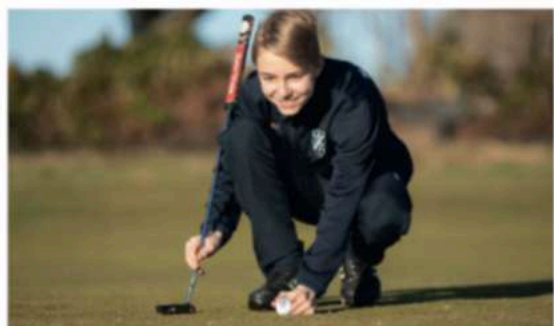

Boys and girls are inspired to grow as athletes via a personal development pathway, which covers all aspects of the game from movement to mindset and from practise to tournament golf. The culture created at The Glenalmond Golf School allows each and every child to dream of future success. In turn, the facilities, the programme and the coach forge those dreams into reality.

The Golf School is lead by PGA Professional Tim Mitchell who specialises in all aspects of junior coaching from participation to performance. The junior specific golf curriculum unique to Glenalmond enables every age and stage of golfer to enhance their skill set through a fun and structured development programme. Whether hitting a ball for the first time or preparing for competition, each pupil will embark on a programme of learning which is tailor made for them. As each child's

- Personality is different a variety of coaching methods will be used to maximize their understanding of the subtleties of swing and movement.
- Style of play is idiosyncratic their creativity and intuition will always be championed.
- Ambitions vary they will be encouraged to set amazing goals and then be taught how to practice and perform the skills needed to achieve their personal targets.

They will learn how to develop a growth mindset in order to enable them to see development as a quantifiable driving force. This inspirational style of learning will take place at the on-site facilities.
